

The first thing that was done in the reign of Henry the seventh was the building of the new church of St. Dunstons in the East. This church was built by the merchant Thomas de la Beche, who was a very rich man. He gave the church to the monks of St. Dunstons, who were then in the city. The church was built in the year 1494, and it was finished in the year 1504. It was a very fine church, and it was one of the best in the city. The church was built in the style of the late 15th century, and it was a very good example of the architecture of that time. The church was built on a site that had been occupied by a church since the 12th century. The old church was destroyed in the year 1494, and the new church was built on the same site.
